CONGRESSMAN-ELECT FLAYS THE UNSOUND POLICIES OF NRA

"Greatest Admission of Mistake Was in The Beginning"

SPEAKS TO WOMEN

Theodore Gardner and Mrs. Hannah Durham Address Republican Group

(By Staff Correspondent)

DOYLESTOWN, May 23—"The time is now here when we should examine and constructively criticize any program of government advanced that might lead to entrench us in a greater trough of depression."

Thus did Theodore R. Gardner, of Lehigh County, candidate on the Republican ticket for Congress from the ninth district, declare himself before the gathering at the semi-annual meeting of Bucks County Council of Republican Women, in the country club here yesterday afternoon.

"And" furthermore declared the young Congressman-elect, "along with the problem of recovery is that of the restoration of our American liberties." He continued by referring to the $8,000,000 in operating expenses for the NRA up to the present time. "The NRA backers admit failure along several lines, including cancellation of air-mail contracts, and also that they were wrong regarding the first draft of the stock exchange regulations bill. They also conceded the original Wagner bill a grave mistake. . . . But their greatest admission was in the very beginning, when the leaders of the movement admitted that the whole recovery program was not systematically planned, but was a program of experimentation."

Announcing that he was in accord with plans to alleviate distress, Mr. Gardner added "But I can see no sound reason for making relief expenses larger than those needed for necessary subsistence." He flayed measures that force employers to pay high wages that keep them constantly in the red. "Such is not a sound policy."

"We are constantly confronted with the question, 'Who is going to pay?' Our national debt is so high now that we're all going to pay, and keep on paying."

The 20 major measures "which were all thrown in by the Democratic party at one time" were brought into consideration, "all to try to bring about recovery. . . . If a person were ill and the doctor administered 20 different pills, the patient might either die or recover. But how could we find out which pill did what? And just so how can we find which measure did the most harm?"

Mr. Gardner told the women he thinks with Senator Reed that "No nation can spend itself into prosperity," and that he was also of the same accord as the Senator in that this nation is healthy at the core, and that "it will recover if we stop giving it bad medicine."

The trend of thought regarding the "new deal" was continued with the speaker informing "We have communism, pacifism, 'new dealism,' and many others—but when all is over we will find the most outstanding will be the 'ism' known as Americanism." The right to "work, and live and serve as we feel we best can," was hoped for by the candidate from Lehigh County, "for these things have truly made America. We must subscribe to the principles that have made a true America, and put back the principles and policies that have made America great."

Mrs. John W. Cooper, president of the county council, who presided at the two meetings, morning and afternoon, presented the two speakers of the latter meeting. The first speaker was Mrs. Hannah Durham, Allentown, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women. Mrs. Durham recalled to the minds of the assemblage the splendid ticket which the Republican party has slated for election next November. "We have a ticket to back up that can stand against any of the nominees of the Democratic party." She told that William Schnader, Republican candidate for governor, knows this state from the inside out, and has fine views on what can be done for the state in the next four years. "The lime-light of the nation is on Pennsylvania. The Democratic party would like to break this 'back-bone' of Republicanism."

"Do we want those professors in Washington to experiment with the millions of people just as if they were so many guinea pigs?" queried the famed woman speaker. The huge deficit the nation is facing was brought to mind. "There isn't a child growing up but will face one of the most colossal tax problems known, unless this thing is stopped" she admonished. "The time is at hand when we must manifest if the 'new deal' policies are to be backed, or if we will stand firm with the old Republican policies that have made the state what it is today."

The tax situation regarding this state which has been called to public attention frequently, was discussed by Mrs. Durham. She again informed that Pennsylvania pays one tenth of

TO SCRAP RECOVERY PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., May 23—President Roosevelt's recovery program will be scrapped and the present activities of the N. R. A. will be taken up by other Federal agencies, W. O. Thompson, member of the Darrow Review Board, predicted today in an interview. "With all the arguments pro and con concerning the works of the recovery administration," Thomas declared, "I believe General Johnson and his chief legal counsel, Donald Richberg, have lost sight of the main purpose of the act. Because of this shortsightedness the entire NIRA will suffer an irreparable loss, terminating eventually in being engulfed by various established governmental departments."

"From testimony presented I have observed the code authorities and recovery administrators have been prone to consider the President's Act as a stop-gap—a sort of Punch and Judy show to divert the people's minds from their present economic plight."

NOT TO ATTEND BANQUET

Philadelphia, May 23—Mayor J. Hampton Moore, militant foe of communism, decided today he would be "out of town" when Alex A. Troyanovsky, Soviet ambassador to the United States is feted here at a dinner Friday evening. Conservative friends of the Mayor who believe that red is a dangerous color except in sunsets, feared that the political hues were getting a bit pinkish. Objectors to the dinner have deplored even the flying of the Russian flag here.

LIGHTNING HITS POWDER PLANT

Carneys Point, May 23—Residents of this place and surrounding country were thankful today that the powder in the E. I. DuPont-DeNemours tower which was struck by a bolt of lightning, had been dampened by the heavy rain, averting a serious explosion. Damage caused by the fire which followed in the wake of the bolt, last evening, was estimated at $30,000. Ten thousand pounds of powder were in the tower when the bolt struck.

TAKE AID BY PLANES

Los Angeles, Cal., May 23—The radio operator of the fishing boat Santa Cruz, notified the McKay Radio here he had been advised two U. S. Navy airplanes had hopped off from Coco Solo, Canal Zone, in a dramatic flight to take medical aid to William A. Robinson who was stricken with acute appendicitis on his boat. He was reported in a "critical condition."

PREPARE FOR STRIKE

Pittsburgh, May 23—Striving to get the co-operation of all groups dependent upon their products, steel workers throughout the nation laid plans today so they will not be caught short-handed if operators fail to grant union recognition on June 10th and the threatened strike is declared.

BURNS DOWN BARN AFTER FLOGGING BY STEP-FATHER

John Wolgatz Admits To The Authorities That He Did
It To Get Even

IS NOW IN COUNTY JAIL

RICHLANDTOWN, May 23—A young man was taken into custody here yesterday charged with arson and according to the authorities has admitted setting fire to a large barn of his step-father. The structure was totally destroyed causing an estimated loss of $4,000.

The one under arrest is John Wolgatz, 17.

Wolgatz is the stepson of Samuel Wolgatz, and last Saturday afternoon at about 3.30 o'clock the barn on the Wolgatz farm burned to the ground. The machinery and other contents were also destroyed.

The young man in his statement to the authorities, it is said, tells them that he fired the barn so as to even accounts with his step-father for beating him.

It appears that on Tuesday, May 15th, young Wolgatz was driving along the road and passed his step-father who is employed in Philadelphia. He did not stop and give his step-father a ride and this infuriated the parent.

Saturday when the elder Wolgatz returned from his employment he is alleged to have taken a whip and flogged his stepson for passing him on the road. Two hours later the barn was burned to the ground.

Young Wolgatz was arrested yesterday by State Trooper Gowan and Fire Marshall William L. Stackhouse. He is now in the Bucks County jail being held for court.

Thursday Night at The Community House

INTERESTING PROGRAM

MORRISVILLE, May 23—An old-fashioned minstrel show will be held on Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Community House. The show will be staged by the Men's Glee Club of the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, with Fred McGowan, church choir-master and Glee Club leader, directing the minstrels.

The affair will be in two parts, with Winfield S. Sipler as interlocutor. End men include Ernest Mayer and George Duke, Walter Edwards, William Schofield, James Lee, Christopher Sipler, Alonzo Bellerjeau, Jack Dietrich, Clinton Morris, Paul Nichols, Rupert Werling and Director McGowan form the circle ensemble. The chorus ensemble is composed of: Harry Wilcox, John Brooks, Ray Margerum, George Willard, Leland Godwin, Fred Snelson, Willard Curtin, Thomas B. Stockham, Jr., Robert Stockham, Ernest Knight and John Sumner.

Following the overture in the first act is a camp meeting skit. Those taking part are: Rupert Werling, George Duke, Winfield Sipler, Alonzo Bellerjeau, Walter Edwards, Ernest Mayer and Fred McGowan.

The featured numbers include a medley of old time songs by the chorus, an eccentric dance, by Rupert Werling; a song, "Down by the Old Mill Stream," by the male quartet; a clog dance, Christopher Sipler, with James Lee as banjoist, and a spiritual "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Donald Tettemer will give several selections on the xylophone, followed by Pete Rose and his band.

The second act opens with a medley, "Marching Along Together," and "Pack Up your Troubles." James Lee offers "That's Why Darkies Were Born," followed by "Ten, Ten, Tennessee," by Ernest Mayer. Walter Edwards offers, "Throw Another Log on the Fire," followed by a close harmony number by the male quartet. "The Old Spinning Wheel," by Clinton Morris; "He's a Humdinger," by Fred McGowan; "Little Grass Shack," by Alonzo Bellerjeau; "Over Somebody Else's Shoulder," by Jack Dietrich; "Back in the Old Sunday School," by William Schofield, and a closing medley, complete the program.

The executive staff includes, besides Director Fred McGowan, the following: Stage manager, Paul R. Nichols; costumes, Ray Margerum; business manager, Ernest Mayer, and advertising, Rupert Werling.

ector of life and property on the highway and in the air as well as a law enforcement agency."

Organized in 1927, the department was created to centralize into one unit the business of collecting the nearly $200,000,000 a biennium which flows into the State Treasury. Previously, this revenue had been parcelled among every state governmental agency.

In the machinery of state government, the Revenue Department serves a four-fold purpose: To collect taxes; to patrol the highways and maintain safety for motorists through the Highway Patrol; to regulate and promote aviation in the interests of the industry and public alike, and to enforce the highway and aviation laws.

Nearly every citizen of the Commonwealth, directly or indirectly, comes in contact with the Department of Revenue. The corporation with a million-dollar tax deals with the Bureau of Corporation Taxes. The small neighborhood merchant pays his mercantile taxes through the Bureau of County Collections.

Fishermen, hunters and dog owners are indirectly in touch with the Department through the Fishing, Hunters and Dog License section. The fees are paid originally to County Treasurers whose work in this connection is supervised by the Department.

Motorists are in constant touch with the Department from the day they begin to drive until they cease driving. The privilege to drive an automobile is granted, and can be revoked, by the Department through the Bureau of Motor Vehicles and the Highway Patrol. Every automobile is licensed by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, which during rush seasons just prior to the first of the year does the largest cash-and-carry business in the state while simultaneously operating a mail-order business which necessitates a private postoffice of no small size. The Bureau has over 4,000,000 customers a year.

Gasoline used to operate every Pennsylvania automobile is tax-paid through the Department's Bureau of Liquid Fuels. A border patrol within the Highway Patrol protects the motorist and gas station operator against unscrupulous gasoline dealers by keeping out "bootleg," or un-

AUCTION ANTIQUES AT COL. PAXSON'S ESTATE

Fine Collection of Early American
Antiques Put Up
For Sale

WILL LAST FIVE DAYS

DOYLESTOWN, May 23—Two thousand pieces in one of the finest collection of early American antiques went on sale at public auction Tuesday at "Elm Grove," the picturesque and historic estate of the late Colonel Henry D. Paxson, nephew of the late Edward M. Paxson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The sale of five days' duration is being conducted on the spacious lawn in front of the Paxson homestead at Hollicong, on the Old York Road, one mile east of Buckingham, with Ira S. Reed, of Sellersville, as auctioneer.

Not since the sale of the collection of Francis Mireau, one-time owner of the Fountain House, Doylestown, has a more colorful crowd of buyers been attracted to an auction in Bucks County. Nationally known collectors, buyers representing museums, and individuals who have various hobbies collecting miscellaneous pieces, are in attendance. Society is well represented at the sale, with some of the best known families in the Philadelphia suburban and New Jersey sections in attendance.

The prize piece of the sale will be offered at auction on Friday when "The Lenape Stone," reputed to be the finest in existence, will be sold to the highest bidder. It is rumored that the Bucks County Historical Society has placed a bid on this rare piece.

The "Lenape Stone" is an aboriginal picture representing Indians fighting the hairy Mammoth, discovered in Bucks county in 1872. This stone, believed to be at least 2,000 years old, is unquestionably a picture of a combat between savages and the hairy Mammoth drawn as well as an Indian, who had seen the great monster, could have drawn it.

The opening day of the sale was confined to Indian relics, iron, stove plates, firearms, armor and books. Today great number of pieces of Indian relics, maps and manuscripts, tools and implements will be offered.

On Thursday a number of rare pieces including Indian relics, oil and light fixtures and minerals will be offered and on Friday a collection of furniture will be sold in addition to fire-making tools and the famous "Lenape

One Man Injured When Autos Crash On Beaver St.

One man was injured and three other persons had narrow escapes last night when a car operated by a driver pronounced under the influence of liquor crashed into another machine.

The accident occurred on Beaver street, near the post office building. A car driven by Frank Richardson, 38, Newportville, and one operated by Sheridan B. Metz, Edgely, collided. Richardson was taken into custody by the police and upon examination by a physician was pronounced under the influence of liquor.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Metz were considerably shaken-up and Thomas Perkins, 51, 5114 N. 3rd street, Philadelphia, was injured. Perkins was riding with Richardson and he sustained a deep gash on the head which required seven stitches. He was treated at the Harriman Hospital.

Both cars were damaged.

BRISTOL MAN GIVEN TEN-YEAR JAIL TERM

Raymond James Sent To The Penitentiary On Four Serious Charges

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, May 23—Pleading guilty to four serious charges, Raymond James, 34, Bristol, was sentenced to serve not less than 10 nor more than 20 years in the Eastern Penitentiary by Judge Calvin S. Boyer, yesterday.

Sentence was suspended on two other bills. The Court also directed that he pay the costs of prosecution and fine of $1.

James, married and the father of two children, according to his own admission, went to New York for several days and took with him a 14-year-old girl. The pair then returned and were arrested by the police in James' house.

Leon Kleckner, of Tamaqua, charged with reckless driving, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and the costs of prosecution by Judge Calvin S. Boyer in a session of plead guilty court.

The youthful defendant, a coal truck driver, admitted striking the cars of Dr. Walter F. Haney, of Doylestown and Mrs. Charles Mann, of Coopersburg, on the Quakertown-Allentown highway. With Dr. Haney at the time of the accident was Frank Bertles, Jr., a resident of the County Seat.

Witnesses for the defendant included Claude Steigerwalt, Franklin Serril and Raymond Kistler, all of Tamaqua. Bernard Hartzler, Haycock township farmer, charged with desertion and non-support of his wife and seven children, was given a chance to make good by September 10, when the Court will ask that he report concerning the maintenance of his wife and children. Mrs. Hartzler testified that she was employed in Chester, where she earned her own living and that of four small children.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer deferred action in the case of Reynolds H. Fortney, of New Britain, charged with the non-support of five small children. His wife, Margaret M. Fortney, testified that he spent his money before he bought any food or groceries for the children.

Fortney, a former electrician in a mid-western city, was given an opportunity by the Court to communicate with Charles S. Kratz, of the Re-employment Service Bureau, who knew of a job that was available for him.

The Perkasio Trust Company was appointed the guardian of the estate of Sallie N. Young, 64, formerly a resident of Perkasio, but now a patient in the Allentown State Hospital. Norman Young, a son, also of Perkasio, and a State Hospital staff physician, testified Mrs. Young was not able to take care of her own matters.

Francis Smith, of Langhorne, was committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory after pleading guilty to a serious charge, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Smith, on the evening of March 4th, attacked Anna Dilmour, an employee at the Woods School, near Langhorne, knocking her down and seizing her pocketbook, which contained about $8 or $9, a compact and registration cards.

Lillian Dunkley, 17, testified that on April 17, Smith attacked her.

Smith, who admitted never attending school more than 4 years, went about in the community posing as a "detective." He wore a badge, on which was engraved "special officer," according to Corporal William S. Bloom, of the Morrisville State Police.

Asked why he took the money from the girl, he told the Court he needed "to pay bills."

Peter L. Becker, of Bethlehem, charged with felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods, was sentenced by Judge Calvin S. Boyer to serve not less than three nor more than six years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

Charged with the non-support of an indigent patient, Harry P. Hewitt went on trial before Judge Boyer.

When his mother withdrew a charge of assault and battery, John Weiss, of Bristol, who has appeared in court here on a similar charge at three vari-

BRISTOL MANUFACTURER DIES AT HIS PHILA. HOME

Warner J. Steel Seriously Ill
For the Past Two Months

FUNERAL TOMORROW

Warner Justice Steel, Bristol manufacturer, died at his home, 1810 Delancey street, Philadelphia, yesterday morning at three o'clock. He was the owner of the Warner J. Steel mills here and was well known among manufacturers.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia.

Mr. Steel was a native of Germantown, being born there in 1869. He was educated at the Germantown Academy and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. After graduation he became associated with his father in the business here and after the latter's death in 1911 succeeded to the ownership of the mill.

Mr. Steel visited the Bristol plant daily up until the death of his wife, a little over two years ago. Shortly after the death of Mrs. Steel his health began to fail and his visits here were not so frequent. He had been seriously ill for the last two months.

The factory here is closed until Friday morning.

In 1899 Mr. Steel married Miss Annie McCrae, of Philadelphia, who died about two years ago. Mr. Steel is survived by his sisters, Miss Mariana Steel and Mrs. Newell C. Bradley, Philadelphia; Mrs. Robert W. Swift, Milton, Mass.; and a sister-in-law, Miss Natalie McCrae, of 1810 Delancey street. He was a member of the Rittenhouse, Union League, Colonial Society of Pennsylvania and other clubs and societies.

Two large barns in lower Bucks County, and one near Quakertown, were totally destroyed by fire yesterday, after being struck by lightning during severe electrical storms which gripped this section of Pennsylvania during the afternoon and evening.

Electric light, power, and telephone service was interrupted, limbs torn from trees, and a number of radios put out of commission.

Two barns on "Sunbury Farm," Newportville Road, Bristol Township, were burned to the ground. The contents with the exception of hay, straw and a few milk cans were saved. The farm is owned by Mrs. Houston Dunn, Philadelphia, and occupied by C. R. Powell. The loss was estimated today by Houston Dunn, Jr., at about $22,000.

A barn at Johnson's corner near Quakertown, which was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon at about 3.30, was totally destroyed together with its contents of haled hay and straw. The property is owned by William Bauntz, and the loss is estimated at $3500. Firemen saved the out-buildings.

The main barn on the Dunn farm was struck at about 6.45 last evening, the lightning hitting the southwest corner of the structure, which was stone stable-high, and measured 90x90x50. The flames in an instant enveloped the entire structure, and spread to a smaller barn 60x30x30, in which six riding horses were quartered. The main barn was filled with machinery, farming implements, 15 tons of hay and 10 tons of straw. Three Holstein heifers were also quartered in the burned structures. The 40 head of thoroughbred Holstein cattle were out in the fields. Firemen from nearby were called and Newportville Fire Company was the first to respond. Bristol Fire Company No. 1 and a chemical truck from Bristol Consolidated, along with companies from Fergusonsville, and other sections later arrived at the scene. The Newportville Company being the first to arrive laid hose from a nearby pond, and did excellent service. They remained at the scene until nearly 11 o'clock.

Two large frame barns, in close proximity to the burning structures, escaped damage, due to the excellent work of the firemen. Streams were played upon these structures, which at times were in great danger.

Several young men were at the Powell farm at the time the barn was hit, and to these great credit is due for saving the live-stock and machinery. Houston Dunn, Jr., Anthony Dunn, John Johnson, Clarence Powell, and George Peterson, an employee at the place, immediately sprung into action. The six horses were led to safety as the structure in which they were quartered, was burning about them. George Peterson did particularly good service in rescuing the heifers, two of which he carried from their quarters which were in flames.

The men were confronted with serious difficulties when they attempted to lead out a 2300-pound Holstein bull. The bull has not been out of the stable for three years except on a few occasions, and has a reputation of being a bad actor. The bull was cut loose and walked from the barn. Men armed with clubs then succeeded in driving him to the entrance of a nearby pasture. Here one of the fire apparatus was brought into service, and pushed the bull through the opening. This morning he was hobbled and "blinded," and securely fastened to a tree.

Two men stood ready with rifles, prepared to shoot if the bull attempted to charge.

The lightning struck in the vicinity of Pond street and Jefferson avenue where the street lights were put out of service for the balance of the evening, and also some of the stores and dwellings had to use candles. At the residence of Anthony Saranzack, 1015 Pond street, lightning struck the radio aerial, entered the house, and set fire to the window curtains. Consolidated Fire Department was called.

Limbs of trees were torn down, and awnings considerably damaged by the high wind.

INTERSTELLAR TRAVEL

For years there have been men who dreamed of the day when it would be possible for man to make trips to the moon or even the planets. But these dreams have been indulged in chiefly by men whose practical accomplishments were few.

The most frequently suggested means of interstellar travel involved the use of rockets as the propulsion force. Within the last few years many experiments have been made in an effort to devise a rocket that offered promising possibilities. Little success, however, has been met, and the problem of interstellar travel remained largely in the realm of dreams.

But now there come forward a scientist whose standing and achievements are sufficiently high to command respect for his views. He is Professor Auguste Piccard, who won renown with the trips of exploration into the stratosphere. He believes that trips between the earth and planets is not without the range of possibility. If this comes, he says, it will be not by means of rockets but as result of the discovery of the secret of disintegration of matter and use of the energy thus obtained. He believes that 120 pounds of lead would be sufficient to propel a machine from Earth to Mercury and return.

His theory is interesting mainly because it comes from a man who has had some practical experience in making dreams come true.

RUSSIA'S WAR MACHINE

In ordering the 5,000,000 members of the young communist league to undergo intensive military training, Russia gives further evidence of becoming the most militarized nation in the world.

The soviet government professes a love for peace, but at the same time believes in preparedness. It undoubtedly has the greatest military machine of any nation of the world. In addition to its large standing army, it has a military reserve in which more than 13,000,000 men and women are enrolled. The rudiments of military training are taught even to school children through games that have a military character.

Are these military preparations aimed at Japan? This is a natural question. It must be conceded, though, that in its dealings with Japan Russia has shown considerable forbearance and has given no evidence of trying to pick a fight with the former. Tokyo, nevertheless, has reason to watch its step. It seems not unlikely that Japanese militarists, who recently have shown a less irritating attitude in their dealings with Russia, may have come to a realization of the strength of the great military machine centering in Moscow.

In order to build a war machine of equal manpower it would be necessary for Japan to obtain a greater source of supply of raw material than it now has. Was this one of the factors that caused Tokyo to launch its recently announced policy of becoming the overlord of China? Absorption of the latter would give it an almost inexhaustible supply.

Every other food fad has been popularized, so why not a "disengagement ring" after the troth comes unspliced, with the picture of a gate on it?

"MA CINDERELLA"
by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS

Ann Haskel, taciturn, independent mountaineer, rules the little village of Pine Knob, in the Ozarks, with an iron hand. Though generally considered hard and unyielding, Ann could also be extremely generous. A hard-working farmer herself, Ann disapproves of the useless life led by the wealthy vacationists at the Lodge. Among these, however, is one exception—Diane Carrol, lovely young artist, whose work means more to her than her wealth; yet Ann considers Diane's painting a waste of time. The latter, however, greatly admires the mountain woman who sacrificed her own happiness for her son's future. Years before, following the death of her first husband, Ann had placed her boy, John Herbert, in the care of an old friend, Judge Shannon, so that he might be educated properly. She has not seen John Herbert since. In his place, she raised a ne'er-do-well stepson, Jeff Todd. Then, one day, John Herbert unexpectedly returns. Diane happens to be at the station when he arrives and offers the stranger a lift. They are trapped in the woods by heavy rains. John Herbert confides in Diane that, although he studied law, his heart is in writing and he hopes his mother will not be disappointed. With darkness approaching, they find a sheltered spot and John Herbert goes in search of kindling wood.

you see, I went in for football a little. Used to throw the hammer some, too, and that sort of thing." He did not tell her that he was credited with having made football history for his university, and that he had won a half-dozen or more medals in various athletic events. When it came to taking pride in some things, Ann Haskel's son was as queer as Bill Carroll's daughter.

But of his chosen work—the work to which he proposed to devote his life—John Herbert talked freely.

The darkness of the night deepened. The starless sky shut down over them. The forest drew its gloomy walls closer to hide them. Save for the low, distant sound of the swollen stream, which was like a sullen undertone, they were engulfed in a vast silence. Time ceased; life stood still. The circle of Ann Haskel and Nance and Jeff. Desperately she argued that the profession of the law for which his mother had educated him might well serve his idealism. "Human rights—the guardianship of the weak, the protection of the innocent, the thwarting of evil, the overthrow of the vicious, do not these constitute the very foundation of beautiful living? Is not justice one of the noblest expressions of beauty?"

"Yes," he admitted. "But how can one be true to his ideals without first being true to himself? I cannot go in for the law merely because mother wishes me to. I must do the thing that is in me to do. If I deny that which is me I falsify myself."

And Diane, remembering her own early struggles with Aunt

CHAPTER XIII.

"We must hurry," urged Diane, following his example. "It's growing dark fast."

With desperate haste they gathered wood to last through the night. The light was almost gone when John Herbert ran back to the car and returned with the cushion. While Diane watched he quickly arranged the bits of dry leaves and twigs and dead grass. A match flared, the tiny flame caught in a wisp of grass, reached for the dead leaves, leaped to the twigs, and a ruddy glow banished the dark shadows under the ledge and touched the wet bushes near by with glistening light.

"Hurrah!" cried Diane. "All the comforts of home!"

"Better have some more wood," returned her companion, and disappeared in the gloom beyond the circle of the firelight.

With his going the girl felt suddenly very much alone and unprotected—an odd feeling for Bill Carroll's daughter.

About the small spot of light in which she sat the forest made itself felt. At her back the wall of the cliff, with the overhanging ledge, in the glow of the fire, was friendly enough, but out there in the darkness a host of phantom shapes crowded close in threatening silence—watching, waiting—held back only by the narrow circle of the light. She shuddered and moved closer to the rocky wall. She listened. There was no sound save the sullen distant grumble of the angry creek, and a ghostly sigh as a breath of wind swept through the tree-tops that were heavy with the rain. Her companion seemed to have vanished completely. It was as if he had never existed. How strange! She did not realize that on the sodden earth and among the wet bushes the young man's movements would make very little noise. The suspense carried her to the verge of panic and unable to endure it longer, she shouted, desperately: "John—John Herbert—where are you? Are you there?"

His cheery answer sounded startlingly near. "It's all right. I'm coming."

As he emerged from the darkness with a log of goodly proportions on his shoulder, Diane realized how glad she was that she was not alone and that it was John Herbert Haskel who was with her.

"I thought I had lost you," she said, in a tone of relief, wondering at herself.

of their camp-fire light became their world—a tiny world in which they were alone.

It may have been this feeling that they were shut up in a world that was all their own, and that all other worlds were so far away, which led the young man to open wide to his companion the door of his inner self. It may have been because his companion was an artist—because there was between them a bond of sympathy, of understanding, and mutual interests. It may have been simply because they were man and woman sharing amid such wild surroundings such primitive shelter. Whatever the reason, the last of the Haskels spoke without reserve of those things which to him were most vital and sacred.

And Diane, leading him on, came to know this man as she could never have known him in the normal course of their lives. Indeed, as he revealed himself to her in his ambitions, his philosophy of life, his devotion to his ideal, his worship of the beautiful, she forgot that they had met only a few hours before. She felt that she had known him always. She had a sense of intimacy with him such as she had never before experienced with any man—not even with her father.

After all, acquaintanceship—real acquaintanceship—is not a matter of years; it may be more a matter of moments. Conventional introductions do not introduce; they merely mention names. If two people are to become genuinely acquainted, they must make themselves known each to the other. If opportunity for this be wanting, they must ever remain strangers.

Bill Carroll's daughter and Ann Haskel's son, that night, were properly and adequately introduced. They might, indeed, thereafter go their separate ways; they could never after such an experience be strangers.

When John Herbert declared his fervent belief that life should be beautiful, not hard and sordid with Jessie, and the creed by which her father had lived, smiled her complete understanding of this stubborn soul.

Thinking to turn the conversation into a somewhat lighter vein, she remarked, laughingly, that there might be peculiar advantages, these days, in having a good lawyer in the family—preferably a federal judge.

But even as she spoke she remembered certain activities in which the young man's mother was popularly supposed to be interested, and was sorry for the allusion.

Then, when she saw that John Herbert had clearly missed the point of her remark, she was tempted to experiment. With a little shiver, as if chilled, she said, "I confess I wouldn't object to a good stiff drink right now, law or no law."

This, of course, brought up the lively question of prohibition, and Ann Haskel's son expressed with no little vigor his uncompromising contempt and hatred for bootleggers, illicit distillers, and all those who profit by the violation of the Eighteenth Amendment. He did not argue that the law was wise. He only insisted that it was the law and was, therefore, to be upheld by all decent and right-thinking people. He admitted that he would not be opposed to the use of liquor under different circumstances. He was not, he insisted, a fanatic. "But the majesty of the law, the obligation of citizenship." Again and again he quoted Judge Shannon, and as she saw his tremendous respect and admiration for the man under whose influence he had grown to manhood, Diane understood why Ann Haskel had placed her son in the keeping of such a friend.

But when the young man declared his conviction that his mother felt as the judge did about this much-discussed question, Diane was frightened.

SAVE TO BUY and BUY TO SAVE

READ this headline forwards or read it backwards—it gives you the same, sound advice.

You have certain fixed living expenses—rent, food, clothing, light, and other necessities. You save money every week so that these bills can be paid at the first of every month. Whatever else you buy must come from surplus savings, over and above those set apart to cover living costs. To make those savings buy the utmost value for the money is the essence of true economy.

Save to buy—then buy to save. Know what you need to buy before going to the store. Know what you can afford to pay before you start out to make a purchase. That is the one sure way to get the most for your money.

Make it a habit to read the advertisements in your newspaper every day. By doing so you will learn where to buy the things you need and where your dollar will buy the greatest value. The advertisements will show you where to purchase better food, better clothes, and yet save you money. They will help you live better and enjoy the good things of life. They help you to buy in order to save.

POPE GOES TO SUMMER HOME

Vatican City, Rome, May 23—Pope Pious XI. today made one of his rare departures from the Vatican to make a 16-mile motor trip to Castel Gondolfo, the Papal summer residence.

The purpose of the trip was to inspect the house and grounds in preparation for his projected summer vacation there.

RESCUE MINER

Pottsville, May 23—Rescued from an entombment of seven hours in a mine hole, James Farrell was confined to a hospital today recovering from shock.

Farrell was buried under a rush of earth while digging coal in a private mining operation. A companion escaped.

LEAVE CONVENTION IN PROTEST

Gettysburg, May 23—Although Eugene Wholer, Plainfield, N. J., retired commander, and nine members of the Roxbury Pennsylvania Commandery left the convention in protest, the Commandery General, P. O. S. of A., today had voted overwhelmingly to break away from the national encampment of the order. Wholer and two others retired from the concluding session of the convention here late yesterday afternoon when it was announced the convention had voted by a great majority to form an independent organization because of a dispute in the national order over membership qualifications of the Commandery General, H. I. Wagner, newly elected commander of this Commandery General, routed the rostrum and concluded the convention when Wholer retired.

FIND MAN'S BODY

Pittsburgh, May 23—Blood covered and his heels pierced by bullets, the body of a man tentatively identified as Jack Klein of Baltimore or Philadelphia, was found concealed behind a large boulder in suburban Squirrel Hill. Police said the man apparently had been shot while in an automobile and then carried, while dying, to behind the large boulder. The man had not been robbed.

OFF ON FLIGHT

Fort Darwin, Australia, May 23—Using a five-year-old wooden framed machine, formerly owned by the Prince of Wales, Jean Batten, young news reel and medical student, arrived here today to set a new record for an England to Australia flight. Batten, who is only 24, completed the long journey in 19½ days, breaking the record set by Amy Mollinson, British aviatrix.

ACCUSE POLICEMAN

Philadelphia, May 23—Nine years of excellent service on the Philadelphia police force came to a sad denouement today as Patrolman Robert C. Wisterhood, 31, awaited arraignment on charges of attempting hold-up with a gun. Accused of aiding him in the robbery was the patrolman's girl companion, blonde, 20 year old Frances Walters. She too was to be given a hearing today. Both the policeman and the girl were arrested in an apartment shortly after they had tried unsuccessfully to hold up a millinery shop.

CROYDON

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Otto Grupp, Jr., enjoyed a trip to Atlantic City, N. J.

Mrs. Charles Friday and Mrs. Bathjoma motored to Philadelphia, Monday and enjoyed the day with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilkinson enjoyed Sunday evening with friends in Hulmeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker have moved to Cambria street, Philadelphia.

Charles Wikkie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wikkie, is expected home on a furlough from the U. S. Navy. His first stop will be at California, where he will meet his wife. He was married to a California girl March 4, 1934.

Mrs. Roy Sattler tripped over a stone and is now suffering from a badly sprained ankle.

POST PLANS FLIGHTS

New York City, May 23—Wiley Post of Oklahoma City, famous round the world aviator, has two spectacular flights in mind, he revealed in an interview today. They are:

1. A high altitude speed flight at around 300 miles an hour.

2. An England to Australia flight (12,000 miles) in less than three days.

Post, who has not been front page news in a big way since last summer, is quietly tuning up his globe-girdling monoplane, "Winnie Mae," at the Newark, N. J., airport, for the two projected flights. He intends making the altitude flight first—possibly within the next few weeks. Just when and from what airport, he would not say. The other flight he will attempt next October in connection with the MacRobertson International race from London, England, to Melbourne, Australia, for a purse of 12,000 pounds which at current rates is $61,650.

ous times, was discharged by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn. Mrs. Weiss told District Attorney Eastburn that John was a good boy except when he drank too much and beat up his mother.

Judge Keller advised the young man to stay away from drink. The suit was nolle prossed.

Revenue Department Is Not Only Collecting Agency

taxed, and inferior grade fuel. A cruiser operates on the Delaware River for this purpose.

Compulsory motor vehicle inspection and enforcement of highway laws by the Highway Patrol serves to prevent accidents. Fines and revocation of driving privileges are the penalties for not meeting the standards of safe driving required.

Deaths are of interest to the Department in its work. The Inheritance Tax section is empowered to collect the State Inheritance Tax on real and personal property of deceased citizens.

Forgotten bank accounts become wards of the Department. The primary purpose is to attempt to find the depositor who has forgotten his money in a bank. If he is not found, the Department turns the money over to the Treasury.

In short, it can be said that in one way or another the Department of Revenue collects through designated agencies all money due the Commonwealth in taxes or as a result of the activities of any other department, board or commission.

The Department came into existence in 1927 but did not begin functioning fully until July 1, 1929, under provisions of the fiscal code. Heading the administrative staff is a Secretary of Revenue, a cabinet officer, appointed by the Governor with approval of the Senate.

A total of $1,194,000 was appropriated to the Department for the 1933-35 biennium, of which $1,149,000 was for salaries.

(The next article will discuss the Department of Justice.)

the federal bill, although when federal funds are expended in the states, the keystone state gets but one per cent.

"If we want taxes lowered, and wish to economize, we can't have everything we want in the state and nation."

"The terrible thing about economy as we have been told, is that everybody wants it for the other fellow."

Then again referring to governor-elect Schnader the speaker told that he will be "the kind of governor who will save money for the state if we will back him, and will let him."

Two particularly interesting problems that came out of the last election, according to the woman addressing the gathering, were: Party rating; and open primaries. In regard to the former she said such should be stopped; and referring to the latter she mentioned the fact that at first there were 16 candidates for governor alone.

"There are of course two sides to this problem, but in many sections the situation was misused or corrupted."

Mrs. Durham asked that all eligible Republican voters be urged to go to the polls, adding that only 49 per cent of the Republicans use the power of the ballot. "We don't want to go along blindly with the 'professors' in Washington."

"We want to back Senator Reed, and send him to represent us again, and we need to back the whole Republican ticket."

Another feature of the afternoon program was a group of vocal solos by Mrs. Sophia Uthoff, Southampton, the numbers being "Do you know my garden?", "Passing by," and "I wonder if ever the rose."

During the morning hours Mrs. Cooper appointed committees as follows: Advisory committee: Mrs. C. J. Buckman, Mrs. Oscar O. Bean, Mrs. Rachel Eastburn, Mrs. Ella Cooper, Mrs. Samuel Benner, Mrs. Frank Gerltzki.

Nominating committee: Miss Eleanor Worthington, Mrs. William Chamberlain, Mrs. Lewis Pritchard. Auditors: Mrs. Rosenberg, and Mrs. William Davis.

Reports by Mrs. Oscar Martin, Doylestown, on the county welfare work, and by Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Doylestown, relative to work of the Bucks County Children's Aid Society, were most informative and well received.

The legislative report was presented by Mrs. Fred Beans, Yardley. The women thoroughly enjoyed accounts of the meetings of the State Council of Republican Women held at Harrisburg in November, this being given by Mrs. Louis C. Spring, Bristol.

Referring to the recent primary election, Mrs. Cooper said "I wonder if you realize what fearful and what wonderful things were done."

She told of some instances where individuals placed a cross at the top of the ballot, "and I suppose they thought they voted either the straight Republican or straight Democratic ticket."

Mrs. Cooper suggested that the Republican women meet in each precinct just before any primary or general election, and inform all gathered how to vote properly, "because there is no sense in having people go to the polls, and not have their vote to count."

Luncheon was enjoyed in the club house between the two meetings.

Auction Antiques At Col. Paxson's Estate

Stone." The sale will close on Saturday.

The Paxson Estate is one of the show places of Bucks county. The late Colonel Paxson died in January, 1933, at his Philadelphia home. He was vice-president of the Bucks County Historical Society; president of the Swedish Colonial Society and a member of the Washington Crossing Park Commission. He was born at the Paxson homestead on October 1, 1862. He was appointed a Colonel on the staff of the late Governor Edwin M. Stuart and in June, 1930, was made a member of the Royal Order of the North Star by King Gustav of Sweden.

Colonel Paxson's will probated in 1933, left an estate of $75,000 and upwards.

Buyers were present yesterday from Philadelphia, Trenton, New York City, Moorestown, N. J., and many other places.

Although "the odds and ends" were sold yesterday, with choice pieces held back for the balance of the week, bidding was quite spirited, and the average piece, considered "ordinary," sold anywhere from $2 upwards.

Foreign helmets brought as high as $20 apiece while an American helmet sold for 30 cents. An old book was purchased by H. S. Leach, of Bethlehem, for $37.50 while one stove plate brought $50 and another right after it, $10.

The Bucks County Historical Society bought a large number of articles, one being the Revolutionary sword of General Morgan, of Bucks county that went under the hammer for $5.

There were a number of "prize packages" sold too. A box of Indian corn sold for 25 cents and arrowheads by the thousands sold anywhere from $1 to $3.50 a box.

The Reading Museum and the Camden County Historical Society purchased a number of articles. The Bucks County Historical Society buyers bid on all of the Bowie knives sold and purchased most of them.

Henry Jefferies, of Trenton, was one of the buyers who purchased Jasper blade knives, and a collection of arrowheads gathered by William A. Thompson, of Coatesville.

There are 675 pieces of oil and candle fixtures listed in the sale catalogue, including a pewter Horological lamp of the 16th century, one of the first specimens of Edison's incandescent bulb, Stiegel whale oil lamp, green top Sandwich lamp, Franklin spark glass lamp, 25 pewter lamps, all different; two adjustable iron Betty lamps, 37 Betty lamps in brass, copper, iron and tin; English brass candle stick of 1580 and many other pieces.

Among those at the sale yesterday were Major Edward Van Winkel, of Duncannon, N. J.; Mrs. George Stuart, Villanova; Mrs. A. Snellenburg, of Elkins Park; H. S. Leach, of Bethlehem; Dr. F. T. Bruch, of Bethlehem; Charles I. Boyer, Moorestown, N. J.; E. R. Barnsley, Newtown, and many others.

GREAT YOUNG JOCKEY WHO IS OUT TO CAPTURE RIDING HONORS THIS YEAR!

BURNLEY 5-17

EMULATING the sensational successes of such former apprentice riders as Westrope, Gilbert, Mills, Coucci and Porter, the newest jockey phenom is little Joe Jacobs, who boots 'em home for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable.

Jacobs has been the outstanding rider of several meetings this year, and looms as a highly dangerous contender for the title of 1934's leading jockey. Of course, during the past few months this remarkable youngster has enjoyed the advantage of his weight allowance as an apprentice, but he has shown such rare riding skill and such coolness and good judgment in guiding his mounts, that turf critics are unanimous in predicting that he will continue to shine after becoming a full-fledged jockey.

Little Joe loses his apprentice allowance, or "bug," as it is called in the parlance of the turf, late this month, and from then on he will be strictly on his own, with no advantage over the veteran riders.

Jacobs was discovered by Guy

Lunsford, brother of former jockey Harry Lunsford. Guy spotted the present turf sensation when he was riding at Jefferson Park last winter, and predicted then that he had the makings of a big-time rider.

Lunsford called the attention of Mose Goldblatt to Jacobs. Mose took the tip and stepped out and bought the lad, later passing him on to the Greentree Stable.

Now, along with the great Silvio Coucci, he is the ace rider of Mrs. Payne Whitney's famous establishment.

DEATH PLOTS A RISING CURVE!

ON PENNSYLVANIA'S -1933-
ACCIDENT CHART 45,374 ACCIDENTS
1,926 FATALITIES

TWELVE FATALITIES IN BUCKS IN THREE MONTHS

1934 Ranking Is Higher Than For Same Period During 1933

COMPARISON IS GIVEN

In a total of 209 motor vehicle accidents which occurred in Bucks County during the first three months of this year, there were 12 fatalities. The 1934 ranking for the quarter was slightly higher than for the first quarter of 1933, the ranking being 18 and 17 respectively.

Comparative records of counties were cited today by the Division of Safety as evidence of the manner in which motor vehicle accidents can be reduced. While the monthly average of accidents and fatalities throughout the state increased during the first three months of this year, as compared with the monthly average for 1933, the division reported that in nine counties the accident rate was kept at last year's levels. In 16 counties, the state trend was reversed and reductions in the number of both mishaps and deaths occurred.

"The ranking of counties on the basis of total accidents reported for the first three months of this year shows many changes from the ranking based on last year's accidents," the division said. "Twenty-five counties which reported either reductions or no increases from last year's figures dropped lower in the ranking. Philadelphia, Allegheny, Montgomery and Luzerne remained in that order at the top of the list but Berks and Erie, two of the largest counties to show accident reductions this year, dropped lower in the list.

"York county, which ranked among the first 10 in the number of fatalities, showed a decided decrease in the seriousness and in the total number of accidents reported up to the end of March.

"The 16 counties, whose monthly average of accidents this year is below that of last year, are:

"Erie, Berks, York, Lycoming, Lebanon, Huntingdon, Bradford, Susquehanna, Elk, Wayne, Tioga, Pike, Union, Potter, Montour and Cameron.

"The nine counties in which accidents remained at last year's level and did not increase in conformity with the state-wide trend this year are:

"Adams, Clarion, Wyoming, Juniata, Forest, Sullivan, Indiana, Monroe and Snyder.

"The following tabulation shows the number of fatalities and accidents by counties, together with the 1933 and the 1934 first-quarter ranking on the basis of total accidents reported:
